condel, rendered yy Mrs. Jewell ; the due "The Lord Is 'Yy Light," by Dudley Buck, was finely sung by Mrs. Belden and Mr. Morten; Rev. H. L. Griffin read the 58th chapter of Isliah, on the fast which God accepts, and led in an appropriate prayer; the hymn by Bonar, "Make Hesse, O Man, to Live," was sung. Dr. Fle dan nounced as his text Rom. 15; 1; "We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmaties of the weak, and not please ourselves." After referring to the multiplied forms of phlianthropy designed to benefit mankied (all the fruits of Christianity), he spoke of socialism. It has come to a question engaging the attention of thoughtful men and women, and it becomes us to meet it in the spirit of the Cospei. As slavery to past ages gave blace to feudalism, and that in turn to free labor and free competition, so it may be that this may give way to co-operation wise, rash and un Christian things had been said and done; but if there could be a change by which the desperate poverty, and the desperate riches of the nation could be done away, the world would be better for it. While a few have ves: fortunes, fourteen-fifteenths of our families have an income of less than $400 per year.

It would be a change for the better if the pich could be relieved from the exciting and expansing efforts needed to carry on their operations, giving opportunity for more social and beneficent culture: If the grasping and undue selfishness prevailing could be repressed, and a kind, benevolent and upselfish spirit could take its place; the poverty and misery of the masses reileved, and they be allowed to share in some portion of the wealth which machinery moved by steam and electricity had created (and which is as free to all as is the men had once done, and for which they have no substitute, or compensation What we each one can do is to give warm place in our hearts to the poor and right ourselves, and elevate the character of others. This stirring and considerat discourse was followed by the singing of the hymn, "We Give Thee But Thipe Own"; benediction by Rev. H. L. Griffia; postfude from Rink, by Mrs. Jewell. 1.
